Fun facts

Sleepovers are more and more popular in the UK, too.

Recently Year Ten girls from a school in Leeds spent a creepy night with their sleeping bags and sandwiches in the dungeon of a castle. They wanted to raise money for children's charities. Their sponsors, a big grocery chain, promised them £1000 if they braved the dark, the draughts and the spiders' webs and didn't call their parents to come and collect them.

The girls stuck it out and got the money.

- 1 How would you feel about spending the night in a spooky dungeon?
- 2 Have you ever done something to raise money for a charity? If yes, what did you do?
