

PEP Internet activities

The aim of the Internet activities in PEP is to make you feel at home when surfing the Net in English. They will also show you how you can practise your English and find out more about the language and the culture of English-speaking countries.

The links

We tried to choose web pages that are not likely to disappear immediately. But, the Internet changes all the time, and the one or the other site will change its name, be archived somewhere else (this happens to BBC pages all the time!), re-locate, no longer be updated or simply be deleted. This can't be helped.

As a service to users, we will be updating the URLs given in the PEP books every so often. This doesn't mean that you will always find the URL given in the book when the time comes. This is not a huge disaster, it just happens.

Expert surfers may be able to find alternative ways to the vanished sites. Or they may discover good substitutes for themselves. If the worst comes to the worst, googling a key idea from the task or activity e.g. 'successful entrepreneurs', 'Scilly Isles', 'U.S. cities' or 'road charging' will usually provide a solution.

Enjoy!

<http://wetterreisen.at> NO, we are sorry. The correct URL would be <http://www.wetterreisen.at/>. At the moment you will not find more than one suggested weather trip. But you could make your pupils search the net for alternatives.

Both OK, but the websites' structure changed. Therefore, choose Transport and when you get there, type "road charging" into the search box (top right). Sort the results by Date. [...] If you click on Link dossier on the right-hand side of the list of results, you will ...

Go to <http://www.pataks.com/> and click on visit site at the UK flag. From here you can watch Anjali Pathak's cooking videos, find out about the exotic spices used in Indian cuisine, or discover in which regions in India they like to eat the hottest and the mildest dishes.

As you browse the site, make a note of one thing you did not know before, then tell a partner about it.
